

13th Congress State of the Judiciary Message

I. Introduction

The holiday season marks the closure of many endeavors—to name a few, a full year, an academic semester, and a congressional term. It also dawns upon anew. As this congressional term comes to a close, a new class will carry the torch into the new year. And as this year comes to an end, so do we prepare for another. There are many moving parts in the holiday season, and there are many busy and excited people. As much as I would like to spend the length of paper dissecting the state of the judiciary, the greater public may like to spare the read. Make no mistake, the Supreme Court will always advocate for a better judiciary: Just yesterday, Justice Saichari_V2 led the charge to notify Congress about the operational deficiency in the District Court. In some respects, that is not a bad thing. The Judiciary has repeatedly emphasized the low number of attorneys in our judicial economy. Perhaps not anymore is this a great issue.

I am honored to be in a position to thank all judges, court staff, attorneys, and all other people who contribute their services to seeing our Judiciary succeed.

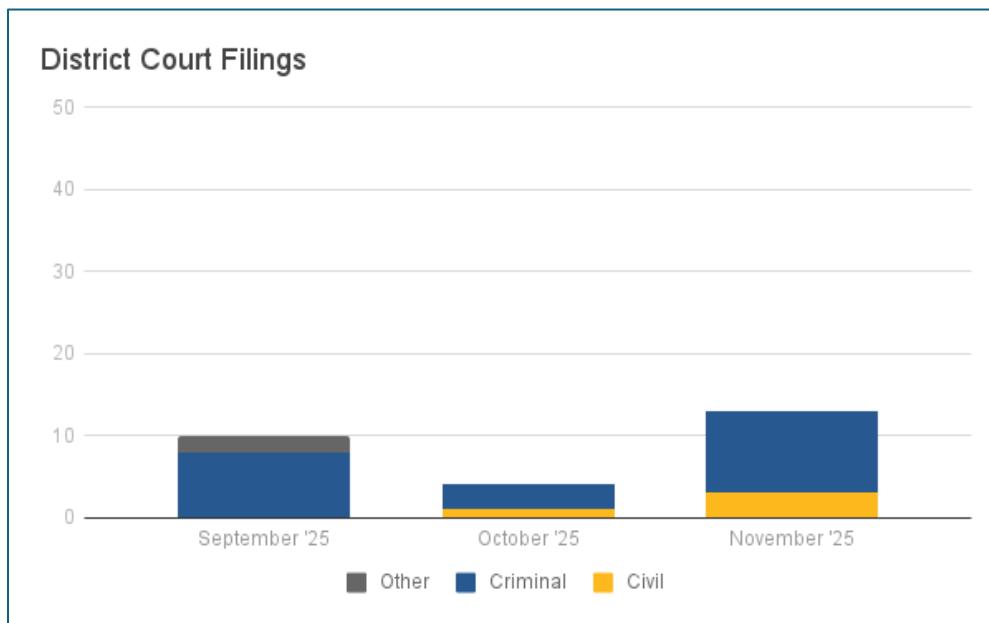

II. Supreme Court's Caseload

This figure analyzes all initiated appeals starting October 1, 2025, until November 30, 2025. The total number of appeals filed in the Supreme Court in October was 0.

There was no change from September. The total number of appeals filed in the Supreme in November was 0. There was no change from October.

III. District Court's Caseload

This figure analyzes all initiated cases starting October 1, 2025, until November 30, 2025. A total of 4 cases have been filed or initiated in the District Court during October which is a 60% decrease from September. Of those cases, 3 were criminal actions, and 1 was a civil action. A total of 13 cases have been filed or initiated in the District Court during November which is a 225% increase from October. Of those cases, 10 were criminal actions, and 3 were civil actions.

IV. Conclusion

My best wishes.
